KEYNOTE SPEAKERS

David Koch

David Koch, fondly known as Kochie, is one of Australia's most recognised and respected personalities. In 2023, he ended his 21-year tenure as Australia's longest-standing breakfast TV host. A former finance journalist and editor, David is now a prominent business commentator, speaker, and Chair of the Port Adelaide AFL Club.

Business Success

Former television personality and leading business and finance expert David Koch, fondly known as Kochie, will deliver an insightful presentation that will empower Territory businesses with game-changing insights while uncovering possibilities for thriving in a dynamic landscape.

Leveraging his expertise, Kochie will provide Territorians with the tools to develop the mindset needed to pursue new ideas and opportunities, and create a winning strategy that drives results and impacts the bottom line.

Leigh Sales AM

As one of Australia's most respected award-winning journalists and authors, Leigh Sales is now the presenter of the ABC's beloved Australian Story program. For twelve years prior, she anchored the network's flagship current affairs program, 7.30, and was the face of major news coverage.

What I've Learned

As the host of the Annual Women in Business Lunch, Leigh will discuss what she's learned about human nature, life, and leadership in her thirty years on the frontlines of journalism.

From ordinary people in extraordinary situations to the world-famous celebrities Leigh has met, her reflections on embracing resilience, addressing self-doubt and enabling transformation will benefit anyone involved in business and industry.

Cathy Freeman OAM

A proud Kuku Yalanji and Birri Gubba woman, Cathy Freeman etched her name in history as an Australian Indigenous Olympic champion. Notably, she lit the Olympic flame at the 2000 Sydney Games, a prelude to her gold in the 400m, a lifelong aspiration fulfilled. Beyond the track, Freeman dedicated 15 years to the Cathy Freeman Foundation, empowering Indigenous youth to embrace education and dreams.

AusIndustry Business Support Showcase

Billed as an afternoon of learning, connecting and growing, Cathy Freeman will share her inspirational story and life achievements at the AusIndustry Business Support Showcase. During a Q&A session, hosted by facilitator Dale McIver, Cathy will address the importance of courage, commitment, resilience and teamwork in pursuing business and personal goals.

From "I think I can" to "I know I will," Cathy's session will provide advice for cultivating a mindset to turn dreams into reality by overcoming adversity, harnessing innovation, adapting to change, empowering people and mentoring the next generation.

The Showcase incorporates an exhibition and six workshops to showcase the support mechanisms available from the Australian Government, Territory Government, and non-government organisations to establish, operate and grow businesses.

KEYNOTE SPEAKERS

Pip Courtney

Acclaimed journalist Pip Courtney has reported for the ABC's rural affairs program Landline for 30 years and hosted the popular series since 2012. She has won numerous awards including Queensland Journalist of the Year with Sally Sara in 2007, international Star Prize for Agricultural Journalism in 2011 and more recently, the national Star Prize for Rural Broadcasting. She was inducted into the Rural Journalism Hall of Fame in 2018.

Diversification in Agriculture

As the host of the Katherine Business Dinner, Pip will deliver a keynote on the importance of diversification in agriculture. Drawing on a deep understanding of and experience in telling agricultural stories, she will touch on how diversification can increase income, open up new markets, spread risk and build long-term resilience to climate change.

During the evening, Pip will also have a fireside chat with Simone Cameron, Cotton Australia's Senior Policy Manager for Northern Australia. With an extensive career as an industry advocate, technical agronomist and educator, Simone's farming journey, her love of Katherine and passion for the industry, will provide an interesting perspective on success.

Dr Alan D. Thompson

World-renowned artificial intelligence (AI) expert, Dr Alan D. Thompson, specialises in augmenting human intelligence and advancing the evolution of 'integrated AI'. He works with ASX 100 companies, major governments and intergovernmental entities, including UN member states, providing advice on AI.

A former chairman for Mensa International's gifted families, Alan is a best-selling author and recently launched two world-first documents: The Declaration of AI Consciousness and the Bill of Rights for AI.

Artificial Intelligence and Your Business

In this cutting-edge keynote address, Dr Alan will explore the transformative impacts of AI on the modern business world. He will provide a roadmap of the technology's trajectory, detail implications for various industries and outline steps to navigate the AI revolution successfully.

Business leaders and professionals will gain valuable insights into practical AI applications, strategies for successful integration, and best practices in human-AI collaboration. Join us to discover how to leverage AI to enhance operations, drive innovation, and create new opportunities to thrive.
